

As craftswomen we appreciate the time and talent you put into creating beautiful quilts for yourself and your family. We also know that you are busy people who have a variety of commitments and finding time for quilting is often difficult.

Our experience tells us that most quilters do not have the skills or are not happy about the actual process of quilting. Longarm quilters have become successful by helping people like you to finish their projects.

Our custom quilt finishing services will enable you to devote your time to making wonderful hand-pieced items. You can complete more projects and maintain the quality that is the hallmark of a family heirloom.

Our grandmothers would have approved.

We own and have operated a Gammill Classic Quilting Machine at our shop since 2002. It is manufactured in West Plains, Missouri and is a highly technical piece of equipment. Our staff have completed a specific, specialized training process offered through Gammill dealerships.

Just recently we became the proud owners of a 2007 Gammill with the Statler Stitcher. Using this computer technology will enable us to expand our ability to do more intricate designs and custom work.

By having two machines we will be able to serve more customers with more options for quilting design.

How to Prepare Your Quilt Top for Machine Quilting

In order to be ready for the quilting process, you will need to :

- Have your quilt top pieced together
- Your piece should be pressed
- All loose threads should be clipped
- You can prepare the backing or we can do it for you.
- The backing seams should be 1/2" and pressed open.
- The batting and backing should be at least 4 inches larger than the quilt top on all sides.

Machine Quilting was invented in the 1950's as the technology of post World War II swept across the United States. For more than 40 years large, industrial- strength machines were created to improve the process of stitching the quilt top, batting, and backing together. Machine quilting enables a person to easily quilt layers of fabric as large as a king-size bed.

We offer batting choices in all cotton, polyester, or 50/50 blend. We also have soy, bamboo, and wool. Because we value good quality batting, we encourage our customers to purchase batting from our stock. We also have a great selection of wide fabric for the back of your quilt (wide backs are typically 108" wide rather than the traditional 44" wide).
